

The April Girl

April showers bring May flowers,
But for them I need not wait,
For April's brought what long I sought
Hunting early, hunting late.

It seems unreal that my ideal
After all this time is here.
And so for me this month you see,
Is the best one in the year.

Honolulu's Social Happenings

Whatever misinterpretations of the servant problem may exist in the minds of many present day hostesses, the fact remains that the perilous position in which Milady so frequently finds herself in vital moments is the direct outcome of her own indiscretion and tolerance with a scheme so out of proportion with her own intelligence.

Granted that the basic principle of a well-regulated household depends primarily upon the solidity of the cuisine foundation, little excuse seems possible for the laxity with which it is organized and regulated, a laxity in fact which is often rewarded by the complete collapse of the entire domestic system.

With not a little degree of anticipated pleasure and expectancy Milady opens up her new establishment, constructed with great craftiness, and heavy expenditure and forthwith sails out into society, fully equipped for her long and interesting voyage of experience.

Supremely innocent of the intricate interior workings of the most essential department of her household, happily ignorant of the consistency of a peach compote, she engages a presumably competent chef.

His own recommendation which proverbially and inversely has been decreed of small value, is all that is required for his safe establishment in the bosom of the family.

With false enumeration, he is bountiful with metaphorical bouquets aimed in his own direction.

His obvious knowledge of social requirements is astounding in its capacity!

And so he is relegated to the kitchen range, which is as formidable to him, as to his mistress to whom it belongs.

The next morning Milady, dressed for town descends in her crisp linen frock to find to her horror a breakfast pitiable in its crude perplexities, and suited more to the appetite of her groom.

It means the loss of time, cancelling of engagements, waste of expensive materials, vexatious rebukes and elaborate explanations to the "cook" who having acquired new knowledge without cost, politely tolerates his irate mistress, who unwittingly has added one more wrinkle to his cheap education.

Another and another are tried with various diversifications but always with the invariable result.

At last a "treasure" is discovered.

And he remains till some member of his family wishes him to return to Japan, a satisfactory enough explanation for his desertion till his former mistress accidentally hears his paragon virtues exploited by the lady who inveigled him away!

There is a simple and efficient check to this childish rip-rap system of employment.

Which would bring up all classes of servants with a quick turn and would put the employment agent with his "dollar-for-each-new-position" principle out of business.

First of all there must be a code of honor among women. Say, for instance, a modified edition of the "ask the hostess" variety. And then a letter of recommendation is all that would be required!

Mrs. Ormond Wall entertained three tables of bridge at her home on Hasinger street yesterday afternoon, complimentary to Mrs. R. M. Overend of Waipahu.

Cards were played on the beautiful verandah in a perfect nest of greenery.

The prizes were dainty confections made by the hostess which added so to their value and interest. They were Dresden silk pockets for telephone directories, and were awarded to Mrs. Overend, Mrs. Jacoby and Mrs. Louis Schweitzer of San Francisco.

Delicious light refreshments of lobster salad, sandwiches, ices and punch were served.

Those present were Mrs. R. M. Overend, Mrs. Frank B. McStocker, Mrs. Frank E. Richardson, Mrs. Emilie Waterman, Mrs. Jacoby, Mrs. Philip Peck, Mrs. L. M. Whitehouse, Mrs. Theodore Lansing, Mrs. Gartenberg, Mrs. M. E. Grossman, Mrs. Louis Schweitzer and Mrs. Nelson Baker Lansing.

A pleasant afternoon was spent at Fort Shafter on Tuesday when in a delightfully informal manner the ladies of the post dropped in to tea as guests of Mrs. Smith.

These intimate and impromptu gatherings are a feature of the post and tend to create a charming spirit of camaraderie among the wives of the officers.

Those who dropped in were Mrs. Burnham, Mrs. Chapman, Mrs. W. B. Graham, Mrs. George Dudley Graham, Mrs. Ernest Kinloch Johnstone, Mrs. Pardee and Mrs. George Cleveland Bowen.

Princess Kawanakoa, whose latest photograph appears in today's page is a befitting representative of Hawaiian royalty.

She is a supremely clever and beautiful brunette, with masses of jet black hair and large brown eyes, and is sure to create a stir among royalty in London.

Princess Kawanakoa leaves the latter part of this month for San Francisco, whence she will proceed to New York to embark on a trans-Atlantic liner for England.

Besides her rank, which is of the highest, the princess is endowed with a rare magnetic, winsome charm which captivates all who have ever enjoyed the distinction of her acquaintance.

Her stay in the islands has been characterized by one gay round of festivities given in her honor.

Mrs. Percy Morse entertained on Tuesday nine tables of bridge as a farewell to Mrs. C. C. Morse and her daughter, Miss Patty Morse, who have been visiting the islands as her house

PRINCESS KAWANAKOIA,

The beautiful society leader, who will visit London for the coronation ceremonies in June.

estra, entered their home. A very happy evening was spent, dancing being enjoyed until midnight. Those in the party were Messrs: Menke, Neumann, Preuss, Zeiz, Pribor, Rohrbach, Kellermann, Scheid, Jacob, Baerling, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Berndt, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Berndt, Mrs. Voss, Miss Hanny Voss, Miss Hazel Ridley, Miss Annie Huber.

Mrs. Emil Waterman is entertaining at bridge this afternoon at her home on Lunallilo and Kapiolani street, in honor of Mrs. Jacoby of San Francisco.

Mrs. James B. Castle is entertaining the children of the Castle Home today at her country home, "The Dunes," at Laie.

The children went down by train this morning and will return late this afternoon, after an enjoyable outing.

Mrs. Charles Bryant Cooper is also a week-end guest of Mrs. Castle.

Invitations have been received for a bridge afternoon at which Mrs. Gartenberg will entertain on Monday complimentary to her house guest, Mrs. Jacoby, of San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Whitehouse will move into their new home at Puunui about the middle of the month.

They will occupy the house built recently by Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Raven on Wyllie street.

Invitations have been received for a very elaborate reception at which Mrs. M. E. Grossman will entertain on the 17th of this month in honor of Mrs. Nelson Baker Lansing.

About three hundred invitations have been issued.

A very charming dinner party was that given last evening, at which Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Jewett Lowrey entertained in honor of Mr. and Mrs. McDonald of Santa Rosa.

The table was a-bloom with velvety red Jacqueminot roses and long tendrils of Australian maldenbair, deep-toned candelabra and Japanese waded-color place cards completing the handsome appointments.

Covers were arranged for eighteen. Among those for whom the guest cards were inscribed were Mr. and Mrs. McDonald of Santa Rosa, Governor and Mrs. Walter Francis Frear, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Knudsen, Mrs. Scott of Hilo, Miss Scott, and others.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dillingham entertained very informally at dinner at their home on Beretania avenue.

Covers were arranged for six. The table was artistically arranged for Mr. and Mrs. John Erdman, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Whitney and the host and hostess.

Kohala Midget: Everyone remembers the success of "Pauline," the taking operetta given by the Kohala Choral Society a year or so ago. The society was importuned to repeat it. It didn't—for sound reasons.

Listen! "Pauline's" successor is coming. "The Merry Milkmaids" is better musically and funnier than "Pauline," and the forerunner of still better performances.

This charming operetta has a bevy of "merry milkmaids," and a battalion of sturdy farmers, who sing lovely choruses to each other. The "Commodore" appears as a beggar, and makes love in song, cuts out "Farmer Jim," and the "Doctor," disguised as a Dutch peddler, enters upon the scene. Monica, the Indian fortune-teller, helps to tangle the maze of love's path.

The milkmaids milk and churn, and the "Farmer's Brigade" hoe and mow. The "Octor" exposes the "Commodore," and "Farmer Jim's" love runs more smoothly. In the end the wedding bells peal forth, in place of the cow bells, and joy reigns.

The cast is as follows: Queen, Miss Grosse; Dorothy (the milkmaid belle), Mrs. R. R. Hind; Monica, the Indian fortune-teller, Mrs. Elgin; Margery, Mrs. Gunn; Jeanette, Miss Alameda; Captain, Mr. Gunn; Two Jolly Farmers, Messrs. Perry and Reid; Juanita, Miss Hussey; Judge, Dr. Cowan; Commodore (beggar in disguise), Mr. Mason; Doctor (disguised as peddler), Mr. Renton Hind; Farmer Jim, Mr. Paetow; Farmer Joe, Mr. Nahiwa; Jesters, Messrs. Richmond and Stillman.
